

WORDS OF BUDDHA

Hate never ends by more hate, but by friendship, that is an eternal law.

Don't look at others' mistake, what others have done and not done; but rather look at what you yourself have done or failed to do.

All are trembling by the use of violence and all love life and are afraid to die. Therefore, place yourself in others' position and refrain from beating and killing.

To avoid doing the evil, to do what is good, to improve one's own mind – that is the message of the enlightened ones

By friendliness you conquer the angry one, by goodness you conquer the evil one. By generosity you can conquer the miser, and the liar by truthfulness.

It is easy to see others' faults but not one's own. Others' faults you want to reveal and show to the world, but your own faults you want to hide, like a miserable cheat.

Victory is the cause of enmity. Because he who has lost has pain. Happy is he who is at peace with himself – who elevates himself above gain and loss.

If in battle anyone should conquer thousands and thousands, still the greatest victor is the one who conquer himself.

How to conquer reluctance against others

If you feel reluctance against someone, you should cultivate a feeling of friendliness towards him.

Or you can cultivate a feeling of compassion towards him.

Or you can consider him without engaging emotionally.

Or you can choose not to bother about him.

Or you can think like this:

“This person possess his own actions. He inherit his own actions and the actions are his mother, his relatives and his support. What he does of good and evil, the consequences he himself will inherit”.

WORDS OF CHRIST

Don't be against those who make pain for you! If one slap you on your one cheek, give him your other cheek, too.

If one shall force you to follow him one mile, you will go two miles with him.

Give him everything who wants something from you, and never turn away from him who wants to borrow anything from you.

Love your enemy who curse you. Do everything good for those who hates you, and pray for them who persecutes you. Then you can be a child of God who is in Heaven.

Don't judge so that you will not be judged yourself! With the same judgment as you judge others, you will be judged yourself. You will receive the same speech/language which you use yourself.

Everything what you want that others will do for you, you should do for them. That is the law of the prophets.
